

Kanchan Lota has a Master's in Public Health from Boston University and is currently the Associate Managing Director of the Outreach, Partnerships, and Implementation Science Program at the University of Michigan. She is actively involved in creating linkages between community based organizations, health concerns in the community, and scientific investigators. She is certified through the American Society for Quality as a Quality Improvement Associate and is actively involved in MAIFS' grant writing and award procurement efforts.